General Comments
This was the first monitoring inspection since the license relocated and children began attending so all previous non-compliances have been corrected. The school-age children were engaged in free play after lunch. Several children were sitting on the couch with the educator talking and playing while another group was involved in imaginative play. The space is large with a variety of resources for school-age children. The operator shared a new wooden kitchen included in the environment that the children enjoy and light pads that the children have been using daily. The educator has been following the children's lead for the summer building on their interests with daily time outside exploring the community and outdoor green space. Attendance records were up to date and all checks in place for staff.
